

REMARKS

Claims 1-13 are pending in this application, of which claims 1 and 11 have been amended. No new claims have been added.

Claims 11-13 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) as anticipated by U.S. Patent 6,965,229 to Duan et al. (hereafter, "Duan et al.")

Applicant respectfully traverses this rejection.

Duan et al. discloses a method for testing a magnetoresistive sensor for polarity reversal, including: writing a test pattern on a magnetic disk; providing a mechanical or thermal stress to the magnetoresistive sensor for a period of time; and, comparing the polarity of the test pattern before and after the application of stress.

Duan et al. fails to disclose the following feature recited in claim 1, which the Examiner has indicated is a feature not found in the prior art of record:

Wherein said specific condition comprises a step of applying a magnetic field to a top of a core slider of the magnetic head when an element part of said magnetic head abuts on the bumps so as to determine as to whether the fixed layer of the magnetic head has undergone inversion of magnetization direction, said magnetic field extending in a direction opposite the magnetization direction of the fixed layer.

Accordingly, claim 11 has been amended to recite this distinction.

Thus, the 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) rejection should be withdrawn.

The Examiner has indicated that claims 1-10 are allowed.
